Step Up and Mentor! 🤝
Join the AllonBoard Youth Mentorship Activation Lab

Hello there! We are reaching out because we are looking for passionate, driven young people to join us for an upcoming experience we are very excited about. We would absolutely love to invite you to the AllonBoard Youth Mentorship Activation Lab.

Take the lead: Become the mentor you once needed

We are bringing together young people, migrants, and changemakers from across seven European countries to launch a new wave of youth-led civic mentorship. Discover how guiding — and being guided — can strengthen your community and open doors for the people around you. No experience is needed, just an open mind and a willingness to share your journey.

What we are proposing

This is a fully hands-on, interactive online lab. After an opening plenary and inspiring stories from experienced mentors, civic leaders, and youth mentees, you will team up in small working groups to explore what mentorship really means and how to make it happen where you live. Using collaborative digital canvases, you will co-design your own local mentoring initiative — from informal civic walks to structured digital coaching circles.

By the end of the lab, you will be able to:

- Understand Civic Mentorship: Explain what youth-led mentorship is and recognise the different forms it can take across diverse communities.
- Design Your Initiative: Co-create a practical mentoring prototype tailored to your own community using collaborative digital tools.
- Make Your Commitment: Share your next step on the project's Commitment Wall and join a transnational network of young mentors supporting one another.

This event is part of AllonBoard, a European project that encourages young people to take an active interest in the decisions that shape their communities. Through discussions and collaborative activities, participants explore how public policies and peer support can influence everyday life and future opportunities, while gaining confidence to take part in conversations about the future of their communities.

We can't wait to see what you build. Pick your community, learn to mentor and be mentored, and let's grow this movement together. Spaces are strictly limited, so take 60 seconds to register and secure your spot today! Full details await on the next page.

See you in the Lab!
